Island, but which turned out to be something else entirely. I came ashore onto what I thought would be Orcas

a while trying to decide on the water filtration system. back in. The time was probably around two. I had spent quite It was heavy, so I dumped it out and stuck all the plastic bags I walked inland, with water pouring out of my suitcase enitease. some time using towels to wipe down the interior of the and a jacket. I put the wet clothes into a plastic bag and spent in the sign. I went into the bathrooms and changed into pants stations where the lights were in the sign, but the sign wasn't there, I found a very old gas station. It was one of those gas Only about a hundred and fifty feet into the woods of paperbacks, really old ones with the puffy gold letters. Especially in the way of books and tapes. I was glad to see a rack shelves. It's always interesting what they have in these places. Then I walked around the gas station, perusing the

On the rack was a pook called SACRED CLOWNS.

The text on the jacket read:

YN YNCIENT TRUST IS BROKEN SYCKED CLOWNS

Filled just days before. manner that a reservation schoolteacher was found brutally bludgeoned in the same with tension. Moments later the clown is in the antics of the dancing koshare fills the air During a Tano kachina ceremony something

75I